

KEHA Leadership Academy

The Kentucky Extension Homemakers Association (KEHA) is accepting applications for a Leadership Academy to be held in 2020. The goal of the Leadership Academy is to strengthen leadership skills for emerging leaders within KEHA. By offering an opportunity for members to enhance and build leadership skills, KEHA anticipates increasing the pool of leaders available to hold county, area and state level elected and appointed positions. In addition, Academy graduates will have increased knowledge and ability to market the organization to potential new members, provide leadership to Extension councils and boards, represent KEHA with partner organizations, and serve as leaders within their communities. Designed by a committee consisting of KEHA Board members, the academy curriculum will enhance individual leadership skills and empower members to lead the organization now and in the future.

Conference Costs

KEHA as a state organization will cover the following costs associated with the three-day Leadership Academy training: lodging costs (based upon double-occupancy), meals, meeting facilities, teaching materials, a participant curriculum notebook, pre-conference mailings, and supplies for training activities. The $50.00 participant fee will be utilized to offset a small portion of these costs. Travel to and from the training location will not be covered by the state association, and will be the responsibility of individual participants, county organizations and/or area organizations as determined locally.
